SUBJECT: Approval of SSCI 200 Social Science Research Methods

August 25, 1988

This course went through curriculum committee in Spring of 1987 and seems to have fallen through the cracks since. It is now in the catalog and we attempted to offer it last Spring.

Although it was originally proposed by Kerina Chewning who has now resigned, it is a good solid course that I believe we will offer from time to time. Kerina, as usual, was very thorough in her proposal. Unless you have some very serious reservations about it, since it is already in the catalog, I recommend its approval.

I also have a second course which passed CAAC that same spring: HD 201 Social Systems Perspectives of Human Resources. I am returning it to the Social Science Department to evaluate whether they expect to offer it and therefore whether they still wish to have it added to the curriculum. Since I suspect it was added in part to give Kerina some courses to teach, we may no longer have the resources for this course unless the department wants to teach it in place of some other course periodically. I will keep you apprised of what's happening with this course proposal.
